SOUTHERN RAILROADS.

THE UNITED STATES EXPRESS COMPANY AND JAY GOULD.

Brakemen Organizing—Changing Gauge—Opening of Eureka Springs—General Notes.

About thirty brakemen, who ran on the various lines centering in Chattanooga have organized a branch of the Brakemen's Union. Will Bishop of the Alabama Great Southern was elected president of the union. There are a number of applications on hand for membership. The brakemen say the organization has no significance beyond the fact that they were the only class of train men who were not organized and they wished to enjoy some of the benefits accorded to unions.

Jay Gould Gobbling the Express Business.

CLEVELAND, O., May 9.—The announcement is made here that the United States Express Company, which has operated since 1854 on the New York, Lake Erie and Western and Ohio railroads, will on Saturday next, at the expiration of its yearly contract, be superseded by the Pacific Express Company on those lines and their branches. The Pacific Express Company is controlled by Jay Gould, who, it is said, desires by means of the Erie to gain an eastern outlet for the express business of his Southwestern system. It is hinted that the United States Express Company will transfer its business from the Erie to the New York, Lackawanna and Western, and will have a western outlet over the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern. These changes are to be decided upon at a meeting in New York this week.

Spikes and Sparks.

ALL arrangements for the change of gauge on the whole system of the Louisville and Nashville on the 30th instant are perfected. By 2 o'clock p.m. on that day every division of the entire system will have made change, so that trains can run through the same night again without interruption.

It is required by law that every accident on a railroad which is attended with personal injury shall be reported to the Connecticut Railroad Commissioners within twenty-four hours. The commissioners are now looking into fifty-seven cases in which accidents have been mentioned by the newspapers but not reported to the commissioners.

The railroad editor of the APPEAL acknowledges the receipt of courteous invitations from the Frisco Line Eureka Springs railway and the proprietors of the Crescent Hotel, to attend the formal opening of that hotel at Eureka Springs, Ark., May 20 and 21 next. The building is one of the handsomest and most commodious in the State of Arkansas, and is certain to command a large patronage this summer.

SEVEN HUNDRED different patterns of locomotives are built in this country. A locomotive builder says: "There is an enormous impression prevalent abroad that American locomotive builders build only design of locomotives and then merely duplicate it indefinitely. But the truth is, there is such a strong tendency among American railway companies to adopt a particular standard of their own, suited to their individual requirements, that a very considerable proportion of the orders we receive require that the locomotives be built exactly in accordance with the company's drawings and specifications."

GOING FOR CLOUGH.

Members of the Bar Talk of An Indignation Meeting.

The article in the APPEAL yesterday morning calling attention to the fact that a strong effort was being made to foil Mr. J. B. Clough upon Judge Howell E. Jackson as the Clerk of the United States District Court brought the members of the bar to their feet. They do not hesitate to speak, right out in meeting, denouncing the attempt in the most unmeasured terms. They are almost unanimous in the opinion that should Judge Jackson yield to the pressure he will do himself and his friends an injury whose effects will be of long continuance. That he should allow himself to be persuaded to give so important an office to a man who is not only universally unpopular, but who is a vendictive partisan Republican, seems to them among things inconceivable, and, if necessary, many of them declare their intention of holding a meeting of the bar and make a formal protest in writing.

BUCKETFUL OF HAIL

Brought in on the Train From Bartlett Yesterday.

The accommodation train on the Louisville and Nashville road brought in a remnant of the recent hail storm yesterday morning. It was a water-pail full of hailstones as large as cartridge eggs, which were said to have been scooped up in the neighborhood of Bartlett. Nearly every man on the train had a new story or an old one related to tell to any one who would listen. A rather remarkable state of affairs was related by Mr. Zedekiah Anderson, one of the thriftest farmers of the county, and who is strictly reliable. He says that the hail was three feet deep in his doorway when the storm ceased, and that his wife had been freezing ice-cream with it regularly ever since. Mr. Anderson, who lives three miles north of Bartlett, is a heavy loser by the storm.

THEY WANT TO KNOW.

Street Talk About a Candidate for County Court Clerk.

A good deal of surprise was expressed on the streets yesterday by the acquaintances and by some of the friends of Mr. E. A. Odium, who, it is said, will appear as a candidate for County Court Clerk before the Democratic Convention, on account of his denial in the Ledger of the day before, that he voted for Blaine. They think it strange that Mr. Odium should have worked for Blaine and for the county Republican nominee, as Mr. Anderson did, up to the very day of election, and then deliberately cast his own vote for the Democratic nominee. Such inconsistency, they declare, is utterly incomprehensible to them. Nobody takes the position that because a man happens to vote or work for the Republican ticket on one occasion, he is forever barred from changing his politics and becoming a Democrat, a Greenbacker or even a disciple of St. John if he desires to do so.

to induce others to do what he could not make up his mind, at the moment, to do himself. So far Mr. Odium has not publicly denied that he worked for Blaine, or that he worked and voted for other Republican nominees at the same time. These charges are freely made, and though they may be utterly without foundation, it looks like folly to suppress any longer what the whole public is talking about. As Mr. Odium himself seems to attach a great deal of importance to the matter he will doubtless be gratified that a bold front is put on it, and the opportunity afforded him to meet the issue on a business way and upon open ground, and put an end to the discussion, one way or the other, for all time to come.

THE FIRST STEP.

The Convenient Hours Adopted by the Democratic Executive Committee.

The class are getting ready for the campaign, in which the initiative step will be taken next Saturday evening, when a new Executive Committee and also delegates to the County Judicial Convention are to be elected. The retiring committee, the new wrinkle excepted, has done all in its power to place the matter fairly and squarely in the hands of the people. The hours for holding the primaries were at first fixed for 7 to 9 o'clock, but it was complained that such hours would be inconvenient for the busy men, and the toughs would be sure to control. The committee promptly changed the hours from 5 to 8 o'clock, and if good committee men and representative delegates are wanted it is easy to obtain them. The polls are conveniently located and the hours such that business men on their way home to supper, at any time from 5 to 8 o'clock, may stop and cast a vote. It need not delay them five minutes, and a result will therefore be just as they desire it. Should they fail to vote and bad men be chosen, they will have themselves alone to thank. Few, except politicians, realize the importance of having live and responsible men on the committee. A great deal rests upon them. Indeed, the entire responsibility of the campaign, and as a rule, success or defeat, not of individuals, but of the party, may justly be laid at their doors. They are expected to hold all the primaries of the season, to arrange and carry out the general plan of the campaign and to raise the necessary cash and enthusiasm. Complete and harmonious organization through the polls on Saturday night may insure the success of the party. In several of the wards the contest promises to be very lively. In three candidates are named, or three candidates whose qualifications are wholly different.

PAINTS HIM A FIEND.

Ugly Charges Made by a Wife Against Her Husband.

Mrs. Mary E. Krell makes a strong and serious charge against her husband, Charles Krell, in a bill for divorce filed in the Circuit Court yesterday. The bill recites that they were married in the county in April, 1878, living afterward in Mississippi and two years ago moving to a farm six miles from Memphis. They led a happy life together until after the birth of their first child, when he began abusing her, and since that time has seemed to take a special delight in applying the foulest, filthiest epithets to her, adding to her shame by accusing her of fickleness. During the past five months, the bill says, he has been drunk nearly all the time and has been more violent than ever. His ugliness culminated last Wednesday, when he beat her with his fists and might have seriously injured her had it not been for the interference of her sister. He seized a gun to kill her, and she succeeded, after a struggle, in wresting it from his grasp, he swearing all the time that he would fill her carcass with full of holes that the birds would make a hive of it. On Saturday last, she continues, he threatened to get on a big drunk and make the farm, which is her property, a howling wilderness. They have three children, all girls, the eldest five and the youngest two years of age.

NAUGHTY EMMY.

The Use She Made of Her Husband's Bonnet and Wedding Gown.

A fair illustration of the unimpaired consciences of some of the thieving domestic with which Memphis, like other cities, is infested, was illustrated yesterday. A negro woman named Emma McGowan was put on trial for stealing a lot of clothing and jewelry from Mrs. Niese, who resides at 224 Hermann street. Two or three weeks ago she was employed by Mrs. Niese, and she performed her duties creditably, though the stores in the pantry were noticed to diminish day by day with astonishing rapidity. One day last week Mrs. Niese left home to be gone several hours, and when she returned, expecting to find supper ready, found instead a cold stove and vacancy where the cook had been. A cursory view of the wardrobe only was necessary to convince her that there were several vacancies there as well. The police were called, and on Tuesday evening Capt. O'Haver and Detective Brady succeeded in discovering the residence of the woman, in whose possession the stolen articles were found. She declared at first that they had been presented to her by a Mr. Hill, but, when taken to Mrs. Niese, she declared to declare in the presence of that lady that they had been given to her by her late mistress. Some of the articles recovered had been badly abused. The dusky Emma had added a stolen flower to the stolen bonnet, and had been cutting quite a dash in colored society with toast and a handsome silk skirt, which Mrs. Niese had not worn since her wedding. The woman is said to be one of the hardest citizens with whom the police have had to deal for some time. She was once arrested for stealing a rocking-chair from a Main-street store and for several other thefts, but always managed to escape punishment. She was tried once for arson, the belief being that she set fire to the house of Mr. A. Hiltfeld, by whom she had been discharged. She was sent before the grand jury for indictment.

TWO HORSES BURNED

With a Fine Cow Belonging to Mr. Holmes Cummins.

Great smudges have kept the firemen busy for the past few days. Six stables, caused by fires built to keep away the pests, have been on fire. The fifth was a small one, at noon yesterday, and the last, about 5 o'clock yesterday evening, was very disastrous. The stable caught fire from a bill of lard.

IT MAKES A DIFFERENCE.

WONDERFUL EFFECT OF A CHANGE OF MANAGEMENT.

Captain Andrews Leads the Nine to a Brilliant Victory—A Busted Cyclone.

If an observant stranger had entered the gates of the Bluff City yesterday evening between the hours of 6 and 7 o'clock, his attention would have been attracted by clusters of men scattered here and there all along Main street in thick profusion, engaged in animated and gleeful discussion of some absorbing topic of public interest. If the observant stranger had chanced to be of an inquiring turn of mind, with sufficient nerve to break in upon one of the animated groups and ask the reason of the broad and widespread grin that adorned the faces of all the visible male inhabitants, he would have received the myserious and cabalistic answer: "Nine to one favor of Memphis," accompanied by a significant invitation to "join us;" and if the invitation had been accepted he would have been further surprised by some such staggering inquiries as: "Isn't Knouff a daisy?" or, "Don't you think Broughton's three-bagger the greatest thing on record?" or, "Ain't he a Jim dandy?" and if the stranger, in a spirit of philosophical research, had gone to the hotel clerk and inquired:

"What's the matter with this town?" What peculiar form of madness has deluged the reason of its citizens? it's dollars to cents that the self-proclaimed autocrat, who prebends behind the counter would have summoned the bell-boy and said: "Show the gentlemen to 9-1, and try and make a home run coming back."

There is no doubt about it—the town has gone basel ball mad, but when the wind is southerly its inhabitants know a three-base hit from a fumbled grounder. Yesterday's events were in no way calculated to check the spread of the mania, although the day opened rather inauspiciously. The crushing defeat of Tuesday, the greatest release of Black, the striking of O'Leary, and the general spirit of discontent that had settled upon the nine and paralyzed their energies, made the utter dissolution of the club appear imminent. This dreadful catastrophe was averted by the timely and decisive action of the managers. They went to the root of the matter, and discovered that the opposition of the nine to the club's manager was deep-seated and incurable, and like sensible men they accepted the situation, and appointed in his stead as field captain first baseman Andrews, with full and undisputed control of the players on the diamond. Speed regained the position of manager, but his power is limited to the supervision of the club's business affairs, and beyond that his authority does not extend. The change seems to have had a magical effect upon the players, and was accepted by the public as a harbinger of better results in the future. The game was a walk-over. In racing parlance, Memphis took the lead at the start, was never headed and won easily with hands down. Speed was the first man at the bat, and it is but just to him to say that his determination did not abate one jot his fidelity to the club. He neither balked, nor mutilated nor let down in his play, but played as hard, as faithfully and with as much spirit as if he were still in command. The first chance he got he knocked the ball to center field where it was muffed, so he scored and scored on a passed ball. Mammel hit to shortstop and retired at first. Andrews took base on balls and scored on Broughton's two-bagger over right-fielder's head. Broughton was caught trying to steal third, Krehmeyer was hit by ball and allowed first base, but was left there by Fasselbach's hit to second. Macon was retired in one or two orders and the inning ended with a score of 2 to 0 in favor of the home nine. Neither side scored in the second inning. In the third the home nine got on to the Cyclone and rode him all over the field. Speed got to first on called balls and made second on Mammel's single to center field. Andrews hit to right field for one bag, filling the bases; Broughton then stepped up and knocked the ball to center field fence, made third on the hit, brought Speed, Mammel and Andrews in, and came home on a wild throw from the field, amid a storm of cheers and applause that lasted fully two minutes. Krehmeyer struck out; Fasselbach made first on Geiss's fumble of a hot grounder, stole second, and made third on another fumble by Geiss of a hit by Phelan, who stole to second; Whitehead's sacrifice hit to shortstop allowed Fasselbach to score, Knouff hit to third and made first on Stearns's fumble of Corcoran's throw, Phelan scoring, and there is no telling when it all would have ended but for Knouff's unsuccessful attempt to steal second. The Macons failed to score and the inning ended with the score 8 to 0 in favor of Memphis. From this point the game ceased to be even interesting. Memphis added one more to her score, and the visitors would have had their coat of whitewash of Tuesday returned to them with interest but for Mammel's usual error in left field, in the fifth inning, giving Decker two bases and resulting in his scoring on Geiss's sacrifice hit to first.

The features of the game were the back-stopping and terrific batting of Broughton, who is already a prime favorite with the crowd. Andrews, Phelan and Fasselbach also played admirably, accepting every chance offered, the latter making a brilliant backward running-catch of a difficult fly. The Macons seemed rattled and fielded loosely. Geiss notably making unexpected errors, but Stearns covered himself with glory by a marvelous one-hand stop of a wild throw by Corcoran, jumping two feet in the air to get the ball. It was a wonderful play, and brought down the audience, who did not cease to applaud until Stearns had acknowledged the compliment by doffing his hat. Macon Clinch has been with a good record as skillful and gentlemanly ball players. Their deportment on the field, even when protesting against what they conceive to be an unjust decision, is polite, genteel and free from rudely bluster, and even when they kick they do it mildly and temperately. ## Baseball Notes.

PITTSBURG, 9; Cincinnati, 7.

ST. LOUIS, 8; Washington, 7.

BARNEY GRAHAM is playing center field for Chattanooga in the excellent style characteristic of his play here last season.

SAVANNAH regained the lead yesterday. The clubs now rank: Savannah first, Augusta second, Atlanta third, Macon third, Nashville, fifth, Chattanooga and Memphis tied for sixth place, Charleston last.

It is rumored that Black has been reinstated. This will be accepted as good news by all local baseball admirers. He has no equal in the nine as a fielder and base runner, and is a pitcher of no ordinary ability. If reinstated here, it will not be twenty-four hours before offers will pour in upon him from other quarters.

Manager Pelz said to an APPEAL reporter yesterday that he would gladly sign him, and Chattanooga would, also, doubtless bid high for him. Now that harmony has been restored in the nine, why not do the handsome thing, remit all fines and start with "a long pull, a strong pull and a pull all together?" The amount of Black's fine was $50 and not $25, as reported in these columns yesterday. There are few men who would not have rebelled at such a fine. If Black is allowed to go his departure will certainly be followed by popular disapproval of a pointed character.
